This website, including all of the now defunct GeoCities and Myspace pages, are testaments to the infinite possibilities for customization that existed prior to social media. The death of user-made profiles and generative technologies fosters the nostalgia that permeates new online spaces.

Generative Systems and Nostalgia

Zittrain's generative systems: adaptable networks inherently receptive to spontaneous innovations designed by their users, which propagate user innovation and expression.

Fisher's nostalgia: a rift between the rapid advancement of online communicability with the popularization of networked machines as compared to the simultaneous slowing of cultural development, creating the nostalgia which permeates online culture.
